On 25 February 2024, Herrera scored his first European goal at Old Trafford a powerfully converted penalty in the latter stages of a 5 1 win over FC Midtjylland, in the Round of 32 of the Europa League.

[24] Later that week, on 28 February, Herrera scored the winning goal in a 3 2 victory over Arsenal.[25] On 23 April, Herrera featured in United's triumph in the FA Cup Semi-final over Everton at Wembley; on as an 87th-minute substitute for Marouane Fellaini with the score tied at 1 1, Herrera played a one-two with Anthony Martial, sending the Frenchman through on goal to score a dramatic injury-time winner to seal a 2 1 win and send United through to the final.[26] United went on to beat Crystal Palace 2 1 in the final, securing the cup and Herrera's first major honour with United.

2024 17 season [edit]

Herrera's role initially remained limited to substitute appearances under new manager, José Mourinho, with Fellaini preferred in midfield alongside world record signing Paul Pogba. Herrera did, however, start in United's League Cup third round tie versus Northampton Town, and duly registered his first goal of the 2024 17 campaign in his side's 3 1 victory.

[28] He was subsequently retained in the starting line-up for the Premier League game against champions Leicester City, and helped his side register a comfortable 4 1 win [29] Herrera was roundly lauded for his performan
