The statute you are referring to is an a provision of the California Penal Code that generally prohibits people f rom operating commercial gambling enterprises.

The statute in its e ntirety prevents businesses from operating any dice-based gambling games for mon ey, regardless of the number of sides on the die.

Essentially, &l

California forbids games where a ball or dice alone determines the out come.

With these restrictions in mind, Tribal casinos got clever an d invented new games that simulated the same or similar odds to craps and roulet te, but retained the legal definition of house-banked card games.
