missile of value of a piano class; one of the most frequent among interested parties. However, it is important to read that the value varies a lot depending on various factors;

Experience: The value of a piano class can vary a lot depending on the experience of the teachers. A master with more experience will probably charge more for his services, but it will not be surprising if he is able to do so at any time and always possible; or that the student has a better job for him or she herself if she becomes the main

Localization: The location of the class can also be a factor that can affect the cost. For example, a teacher in a big city can charge more than 1 person in a small town; Duration of the class: The longer the class, the higher the cost. For example, a 30-minute class will probably cost less than 60 minutes.

Typology of classes: The type of class can also be a factor that can affect the cost. For example, private classes can cost more than a group class;

Other factors that can influence the value of a class are
